Wexford Health employees present donation to American Cancer Society

PITTSBURGH, PA (May 4, 2011) — Wexford Health Sources, Inc. recently presented the Pennsylvania Division of the American Cancer Society with a check for $2,385. The employees of Wexford Health utilize multiple internal fundraising activities each year to donate to the charity of their choice.

Wexford Health president and CEO Mark Hale said “We are pleased to present this check to the American Cancer Society. Many of our employees’ lives have been affected by cancer in some way, so we decided to make a contribution to the vital programs the American Cancer Society provides here in the greater Pittsburgh area.”

Nicole Burke, Corporate Relations Specialist for the American Cancer Society states, “I would like to thank Wexford Health Sources for their generous donation. 100% of this donation will directly benefit the Society’s local patient programs and services, research and advocacy work. The Society provides local patient services and support in Western Pennsylvania through multiple programs including Reach to Recovery – a peer support program for newly diagnosed breast cancer patients.

Without the support of organizations like Wexford Health Sources, we would be unable to continue our mission to help patients Get Well, Stay Well, Find Cures, and Fight Back!”

Wexford Health is committed to improving the communities we work and live in through charitable and volunteer activities. For more information on Wexford Health, go to www.wexfordhealth.com.

Serving approximately 90,000 patients, Wexford Health Sources is one of the nation’s largest correctional health care providers. The company provides medical, mental health, pharmacy, substance abuse, utilization management, claims processing, and technology services to more than 100 state, regional, and local clients across the country. The Pittsburgh-based corporation helps government agencies and institutions control health care costs without sacrificing quality of care.
